

Knowledge is power and guidance is golden. Since kids don't come with an owner's manual, most of us are 'winging it,' when it comes to the challenges of raising children. Wouldn't it be great if an expert could share insider secrets about how to keep kids safe on the internet, how to raise our kids to be 'money-smart,' how to recognize depression in children, fix fast and healthy meals, or make our homes more environmentally friendly? Let's do it! Four times this year, we will offer Parent Information Meetings that include useable tips and ideas for today's parents. The Coordinator will help select the topics, and find community resources to deliver the programs. The time commitment is probably around eight hours – spread through the year. If you are a passionate parent and would like to help, please send an email to georgetownPTA.ipsd@gmail.com.
